

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE 2021 HEVESY MEDAL AWARDEE

The Hevesy Medal Award Selection Panel 2021-2022 (HMASP-2021-2022) is pleased to announce that Professor Vladimir P. KOLOTOV (kolotov@geokhi.ru) of the Vernadsky Institute of Geochemistry and Analytical Chemistry, Russian Academy of Sciences, in Moscow, Russia has been selected to receive the 2021 Hevesy Medal Award (HMA-2021) in recognition of his work on gamma-ray spectrometry, application of neutron and photon activation analysis to high-purity materials and environmental samples, and development of low-activation structural materials for different types of nuclear reactors.

The Hevesy Medal and a certificate will be presented to Professor KOLOTOV at the HMA-2021 Ceremony to be held at the 19th Radiochemical Conference (RadChem-2022) in Mariánské Lázně, Czech Republic during 2022 May 15-20.

The HMASP-2021-2022 consisted of Professor Amares CHATT (Canada, also Chair of JRNC Board of the Hevesy Award, and Chair of HMASP-2021-2022), Professor Tibor BRAUN (JRNC Board of the Hevesy Award), Professor CHAI Zhifang (China), Professor Elisabete A. De Nadai FERNANDES (Brazil), Professor Kattesh V. KATTI (U.S.A.), Dr. Stephen P. LAMONT (U.S.A.), Dr. Richard LINDSTROM (U.S.A.), Professor Yoshio TAKAHASHI (Japan), and Dr. Zsolt RÉVAY (Germany, also JRNC Board of the Hevesy Award). In accordance with the rules of the Award, a secret vote was conducted.

The George Hevesy Medal Award is the premier international award of excellence in radioanalytical and nuclear chemistry. It is named after George de HEVESY (1885-1966) who received the Nobel Prize for Chemistry in 1943 for his work on the use of isotopes as tracers in the study of chemical processes. The George Hevesy Medal is awarded to an individual in recognition of excellence through outstanding, sustained career achievements in the fields of pure as well as applied nuclear and radiochemistry, in particular applications to nuclear analytical chemistry. Established originally in 1968 by Professor Tibor BRAUN, Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of Radioanalytical and Nuclear Chemistry (JRNC), the Hevesy Medal Award was given 19 times during 1968-86. This Award was reactivated in 2000 by Professors BRAUN and CHATT. It is sponsored by JRNC and administered as well as adjudicated by the JRNC Board of the Hevesy Award. The Award has no monetary value. The George Hevesy Medal Award comprises an engraved bronze medal and a certificate which are presented at a major international nuclear and radiochemistry conference.
